MEDICAL CENTER, DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA, USA.

Dr Judd Moul is Professor and Chief of the Division of Urologic Surgery and Director of the Duke Prostate Center at Duke University Medical Center, Durham, North Carolina, USA. Prior to this, he was Professor of Surgery at the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences (USUHS) in Bethesda, Maryland, USA and an attending Urological Oncologist at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center (WRAMC) in Washington, DC, USA. In addition, he was Director of the Center for Prostate Disease Research (CPDR), a congress-mandated research programme of the Department of Defense based at the USUHS and WRAMC.

Dr Moul earned his medical degree from Jefferson Medical College and completed his Fellowship in Urologic Oncology at Duke University.

Dr Moul has received a number of awards. In 1995, he received the American Medical Association Young Physicians Section Community Service Award for his national involvement in prostate cancer patient support groups; he was awarded the Sir Henry Wellcome Research Medal and Prize from the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States in 1996; and, in 1994, he was a selected Fellow of the American Urological Association/European Association of Urology International Academic Exchange Programme. In 1997, Dr Moul was the recipient of the prestigious Gold Cystoscope Award from the American Urological Association. He received the Baron Dominique Jean Larrey Military Surgeon Award for Excellence in 1998 and, in 2004, was awarded the Order of Military Medical Merit from the Surgeon General of the US Army. In 2006, Dr Moul was elected as Chairman of the newly founded American Urological Association Foundation Education Council.

Dr Moul currently serves on the editorial boards of Urology, the Journal of Urology and the World Journal of Urology, and is co-Editor of Prostate Cancer and Prostatic Diseases. He has published over 350 medical and scientific manuscripts and book chapters.
